Cookies

A cookie is a small file that is placed on your computer when you visit certain websites.

When you first visit our website using a new browser, we will provide you with a cookies permission banner seeking your consent to use cookies. By clicking 'Accept' or clicking through to any part of the site, we will start to manage your visit using cookies.

We use cookies for the following purposes:

- Performance Purposes. We use analytics cookies that anonymously remember your computer or mobile device when you visit our website. These keep track of browsing patterns and help us to build up a profile of how our visitors use the website. We use that information for customer analytics; to provide a better user experience and serve advertisements that we think might be of interest to you on our and other websites. We also use this technology to check if you have opened our emails, so we can see if they are being delivered correctly and are of interest. Your browser may use similar cookies for similar purposes and to serve advertisements for others.
- Service Purposes. These cookies help us to make our website work as efficiently as possible. These include detecting what device you are using so that we can adapt how we present our services according to the screen size of that device.

We have no access to third party cookies and third-party organisations have no access to ours. The third-party organisations that place cookies, including your browser (such as Google) and the third-party companies who pay for advertising and analytics services using this information, will have their own privacy policies.

Managing and Removing Cookies

Most browsers allow you to turn off cookies. To do this look at the "help" menu on your browser. This will tell you how to prevent your browser from accepting new cookies, how to delete old cookies and how to disable cookies all together. Switching off cookies may restrict your use of the website and/or delay or affect the way in which it operates.
